

Gallagher Gives is part of our global Corporate Social Responsibility programme.

One of the main reasons so many colleagues are proud to work at Arthur J. Gallagher is the solid foundation that our culture gives us. Empathy for other people and an acknowledgement that we can all improve and learn from one another are key assets that contribute greatly to making us the company that we are.

These attributes are also an important part of how we as a business interact with and support our local communities. At Arthur J. Gallagher we actively encourage colleagues to get involved in a wide variety of fund-raising and volunteering activities for good causes that mean a lot to them personally. It is this enthusiasm and passion that we harness and encourage through our community involvement programme, Gallagher Gives.

As part of our programme of work in our communities, we also run a payroll giving scheme; offer colleague matched giving; matching monies raised by your fundraising activities or volunteering to help boost your chosen charity. We also allow 3 calendar days per year for you to volunteer during working hours to have a real and lasting impact in your local community.

Gallagher Gives provides opportunities for you to get involved in local projects, volunteer your time and expertise as well as lots of other ways to get involved in your community. Watch our Gallagher Gives video to see what our teams got up to in 2016.
